Princeton was no bigger Saturday than was Dartmouth, but the green was hopelessly distanced at every turn in the game. Harvard's forwards ends and backs were all over the field and it was so consistent in demonstrat ing its superiority over the New Hamp-shire eleven that there was little sign ers and undoubtedly has the plays, not exhibited so far, that will give the excellent material more chance to show itself If Harvard is beaten this week, that upheaval in Jersey last week will rank second in importance.

The football season has but two other choice matches left besides the New Haven game. Cornell and Pennsylvania will meet Thanksgiving day in Philadelphia in their annual combat and on the Interesting Game Between Harvard Law following Saturday the army and navy will meet on the same field. The Cornell ame is not of so vast importance, but the other match is. West Point and Annapolis have two of the strongest elevens in the country. The army has beaten Yale and has only lost to Harvard.
